Case Report

The Merriam-Webster dictionary defines the alternative medicine as, "Any of various systems of healing or treating disease (as chiropractic, homeopathy, or faith healing) not included in the traditional medical curricula of the United States and Britain." These streamlined words seem to be created by the nature, God or some other thinking being, through actions and thoughts of a particular healer. On this article, I want to share my opinion about the fact that people call me a healer as well as the methods I use to heal and the results I obtain.

I'm emphasizing on the fact that people call me a healer, and it's not vice versa. People call me healer because they come to looking for a cure from various diseases. They come by themselves, and then they bring with them their friends, relatives, children and grandchildren. I do not think it is called a profession, although I do this for living. It is most like a goal for someone who has the gift. At some point in my life, I understood the point of this (entire alternative medicine thing), even when my professional career was great. After a while, I began to experience the joy and bliss of the happy faces of the patients. I began to experience the changes that occur to them, both physical and mental.

Let's look to the methods I use to heal. I have my own opinion about people's treatment, formed by nearly 30 years of practice. This is because I keep in my cabinet, more than six thousand patients' files that left a record of what had changed in their body because of our work. I treat any disease, (even if it sounds big), that come to my front desk. I heal through thoughts. I can do it if the treatment is remotely (using tools such as Skype) and laying my hands at a one by one sessions. That's all I use. In addition, I have been doing this all around the world in different countries, remotely, face to face, traveling, by phone, etc. because alternate medicine has no barriers around the planet.

My methodology is developed from different key points that developed a sort of guide for my patients to heal in a quicker and more consistent way. For example, it's a must to add a proper diet plus a bowel cleansing because that way, the goal is reached faster. In addition, it is better to organic and natural food for the simple reason that plants have feelings, but no soul. Moreover, animals do have a soul. Why is it better to eat raw vegetables and fruits? Because they are alive!

Another key point of my methodology is to define what hurts and what should be treated. First, I don't like to use the word "disease". The patient concludes with doctors' opinion, what is his/her illness. However, usually, I have a different opinion. I see and feel any lumps in the patient's body. I feel the lump with my fingers now that the patient confirms "It's true, that part of my body is always whining in the evening". In other cases, there is some sort of streaks of pus, which gives diarrhea for six months; or something like diverticula in the intestine causing a polycystic issue in a woman. You can see for yourself the relationship between such things.

In the other hand, one of my methodology's key points is that diseases develop as it were from the seed, rolled in the same way when it cures. First, the pain disappears; then, the discomfort during palpation; next, the feeling of anxiety ends, high temperature goes away and so on. For example, colds and inflammation of the bladder cystitis in women go away followed by a cyst on the ovary; then, the fibroids and the breast began to ache for the same right-hand side. Everything will go away in the reverse order. I have seen it on many patients.

Let us review another example of the methodology applied to a patient's case (Figure 1a). A man has a severe pain in the hip. He had been walking for six months with a crutch. I looked at him and said that the cause of the disease is in the heel of his the other leg. He looks at me already regretting that he came to me. The right side hurts, but I said that the problem in the left heel. I wonder what he thought five minutes later when he remembered that a few years ago, he puts a special ring that appears under the wart on the left heel. He walked on the certain way in which the entire pelvis was slightly skewed and relied more on the right side. That has developed the disease. Of course, I have cured both sides gladly. Yes, he is now walking without crutches. Moreover, there are many of those cases.

Let me give you another example (Figure 1b). I got a call by Skype from a young Russian woman who asked me: -“Can you help me? I have a congenital heart disease and doctor’s don’t give me much remaining time to live.” The woman could not work. She was sitting home and could not even wash the dishes. What would the doctors do with this disease? Of course, first, they began listening to the young woman’s heart. Sounds logical? Yes. How does the healer do it? He asks the patient to make Skype a dozen photos of the back. Sound logical? No. What does the doctor said? Doctor said that a healer is a true windbag; he does not even know where the heart is. In addition, guess what... The woman finally sent pictures of her back to the healer. A doctor never saw those pictures. What for? The heart hurts, not the back, right. Look at what the healer saw and how this history ended:

I would like to add that the woman is now healthy. She is working. She also wrote that she loves to skate and she is constantly writing grateful letters. You can confirm that she was completely cured by Skype sessions, at the following link: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=rLlk9ORPGTs>

After discussing the methods, you will see some of the results those methods produce. Patients say that if the first session gives a real positive result, the treatment will continue. That means an immediate decrease or removal of any symptoms of the disease or diseases (Figure 1c). For example: removal or significant reduction of the pain, control of the body temperature and blood pressure control, better mobility on body parts like knees, etc. Some patients say, for example, that their eyes see brighter colors, the body feels lighter, etc. So, if the first session is yielding positive results and, tangible reality for the patient (as always happens) the disease is bound to be cured. You just need some time and patience. I not only work with complex cases such as patients with

Down syndrome. Although there have been positive results in such patients, treatment is very energy - expensive, long, and not everyone is willing to pay for it. Everything else is practically curable.

Now, to understand the results in a better way let me give you a couple of examples. Here, for example, this is what happened with cancer at the very first treatment session:

I would like to give another example of one of the strongest varicose cure in a young woman who suffered from this discomfort for about 20 years, as an example of the used method results. Her doctor and she thought that the disease appeared because she stood for many years at the surgical table due to her profession. Conventional medicine offered surgery only, but the patient’s sister had the exact same varicose disease and after surgery, her varicose veins reappeared. The photo shows the story by itself. You can see the legs before after the treatment.

Cancer, diabetes and all other diseases (called incurable), can all be cured. I want to emphasize, the correct word is not treated, it’s cured. In addition, I have had enough of these patients. The following link is another example of the results of the treatment: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=b_Wpv5ks9XU

In conclusion, during this article, we checked the meaning of an alternate medicine healer. Also, we were able to check the methodology I used followed by the results I obtain with my patients. As you understood from these methodology key points and the many examples of the results, the approach to the disease and its cure, sometimes go against doctors’ logic. I wanted to give you information about what I do in a short and clear way. Maybe I got it. Anyway, it was a pleasure.
